Capó began his career with Atlètic de Ciutadella at only 17 years of age for the 1972–73 Tercera División. His performance would catch the interest of FC Barcelona as he would sign on for the following 1973–74 season. However, due to being a reserve goalkeeper behind Salvador Sadurni and Pere Valentí Mora, he would never gain the opportunity to play for Barcelona in an official match, instead only playing in friendlies, including playing a series of friendlies in the Netherlands as the club won the 1973–74 La Liga. During the 1974–75 season, he would be switched over to Barcelona Atlètic and with the following 1975–76 season having Pedro María Artola replace Capó, he would have a brief spell with Terrassa before switching over to play for Sabadell over the course of the next three seasons. For the 1979–80 season, Capó would catch the interest of Celta de Vigo but this debut season would see... 3ee9529d1a
