In the West, adult-sized tricycles are used primarily for recreation, shopping, and exercise. Tricycles are favoured by children, disabled people, and senior adults for their apparent stability versus a bicycle; however a conventional trike may exhibit poor stability when turning, and the rider should exercise appropriate caution when cornering (e.g., with regard to speed, rate of turn, slope of surface) and technique (e.g., leaning the body 'into' the turn) to avoid tipping the trike over. Designs such as recumbents or others which place the rider lower relative to the wheel axles have a lower centre of gravity, and/or designs with canted wheels (tilted at the top towards the centerline) may be more resistant to lifting inner wheels or tipping during fast sharp turns, but still require operator awareness and technique. bac403d25a
