This year, the Handyman Rehabilitation Centre is located at the Pow Wow Point Lodge, a 100-year-old country retreat near Huntsville, Ontario, where each contestant competes in challenges meant to improve their do-it-yourself skills, including one where all the contestants must work together as a group. Furthermore, unlike previous seasons, contestants will not be given the materials or tools that they need: instead. At the end of the last episode, the worst of the five contestants is named Canada's Worst Handyman. As with previous years, five people, nominated by their family or friends, enter the Handyman Rehabilitation Centre to improve their handyman skills. At the end of each episode, host Andrew Younghusband and two judges determine the most improved and the worst contestant in each episode: the most improved being rewarded with the responsibility in leading the next episode's group challenges, while the worst being punished with a further one-on-one tutorial with Andrew. This reduces risks to a level considered acceptable by a society, an institution, or to specific parents. Childproofing may include restriction of children to safe areas or preventing children from reaching unsafe areas. It has become the top-of-mind for parents so much so that hotels and child-friendly resorts are offering "child-proof" rooms. Their use of religious garb, singing, and reading from a Torah have upset many members of the Orthodox Jewish community, sparking protests and arrests. The group attempted to challenge these rules and establish "female support" for the men's decision, but the Ministry of Justice confirmed that this was not recognized. One of those restrictions is that the Rabbi of the Western Wall has enforced gender segregation and limitations on religious garb worn by women. Pew Research Center has identified Israel as one of the countries that place "high" restrictions on religion, and there have been limits placed on non-Orthodox streams of Judaism. In January 2016, the Israeli Cabinet approved a plan to designate Women of the Wall (WOW; Hebrew: נשות חומת המזרח, Neshot HaKotel) is a multi-denominational Jewish feminist organization based in Israel whose goal is to secure the rights of women to pray at the Western Wall, also called the Kotel, in a fashion that includes singing, reading aloud from the Torah and wearing religious garments (tallit, tefillin and kippah)
