Gilberts Corner is named after the William Gilbert family, who ran the gas station/restaurant that sits at the northeastern quadrant of the crossroads. It gained prominence in the 1920s when the Carolina Road (now Watson Road) was a toll road and U.S. 15 was extended south from Leesburg to U.S. 50. Due to increased traffic from toll evaders, U.S. Route 15 eventually was extended even farther south. The gas station/restaurant closed in the 1980s and is currently in the process of being renovated. Due to heavy traffic in the area, many commuters avoided the intersection altogether by going through Lenah and taking U.S. Route 15 south. 41622af0a3 == History == 41622af0a3 == History and current terms == 41622af0a3 John Corner was born in Sunderland, England, on 24 January 1916, the elder son of John and Elizabeth Corner. After his family's move to Newcastle-upon-Tyne he won a scholarship to Newcastle Royal Grammar School where he won a number of academic prizes. He specialised in mathematics and physics and was encouraged by his headmaster to apply for a Goldsmiths scholarship to allow him to attend university. He obtained this scholarship and went to Peterhouse, Cambridge, where he was awarded firsts in Parts I and II of the Mathematical Tripos in 1937. He then went on to postgraduate study at the Mathematics Laboratory, Cambridge, under the then Director Professor John Lennard-Jones. He was awarded his PhD in 1946. 41622af0a3 The Green Line A branch formerly diverged just north of the platforms; its streetcars stopped at separate platforms on Brighton Avenue. The Brighton Avenue streetcar reservation was removed from July 1 to October 5, 1949, and the side platforms for the Watertown Line were replaced with an island platform. The A branch was closed on June 21, 1969, and replaced with the route 57 bus, though the trackage was retained for non-revenue moves to Watertown Yard. The line was finally abandoned in 1994; a several-hundred-foot stub track was left until the mid-2000s to temporarily store disabled trains. The switch and the last few feet of track were not disconnected until track work in 2014. 41622af0a3 == History == 41622af0a3 On May 1, 2008, Senator John Warner, Congressman Frank Wolf, and County Supervisor Jim Burton attended a groundbreaking ceremony to launch an improvement of the intersection.
