History of San Diego As the first area of The history of San Diego began in the present state of California, when Europeans first began inhabiting the San Diego Bay region. As the first area of California in which Europeans settled, San Diego has been described as "the birthplace of California". A fort and mission were established in 1769, which gradually expanded into a settlement under first Spanish and then Mexican rule. The history of San Diego began in the present state of California, when Europeans first began inhabiting the San Diego Bay region. Explorer Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo was the first European to discover San Diego Bay in 1542, roughly 200 years before other Europeans settled the area. Native Americans such as the Kumeyaay people had been living in the area for as long as 12,000 years prior to any European presence 7004de6898

Efforts by community and political leaders to bring a state university to North County date back to the 1960s. In 1969, the chancellor of the CSU system, Glenn S. Dumke, issued a report concluding that there was "an ultimate need" for a new university campus in the area. 7004de6898 == History == 7004de6898
