The verse "I'm on the ledge of the eighteenth story" is a reference to the eighteenth chapter of Dante Alighieri's poem Inferno, the first part of the Divine Comedy. The song was featured in the closing credits to the film The Condemned as well as in the commercials for the third season of Battlestar Galactica and the second season of Prison Break. It was also the title theme for the TV series Surgery Saved My Life. The station went on the air in 1984 as KCWS, a local independent station for the Colorado Western Slope, but went bankrupt and off the air after six months. It was revived in 1987 as KREG-TV, a satellite of CBS and NBC affiliate KREX-TV in Grand Junction. As Glenwood Springs is assigned to the Denver media market instead of Grand Junction, the station was sold by Nexstar Broadcasting Group to Marquee Broadcasting in 2016, and to Weigel Broadcasting in 2020. Since then, even though KREG-TV has no signal penetration into the Denver metropolitan area, it has been positioned as a station serving Denver via cable and satellite. == History == When KNCT signed on in November 1970, it was the sole PBS station for the western portion of the market, with the eastern portion served by Texas A&M's KAMU-TV, which signed on in February 1970. In 1978, KNCT set up a low-powered translator in Waco. The main KNCT signal barely covered Waco, while KAMU's signal just missed it. In 1989, it was upgraded to a full-fledged station, KCTF, which was spun off as a separate station in 1994... The programme then alternates between what the parents are...

Quincy was originally broadcast as 90-minute telefilms as part of the NBC Sunday Mystery Movie rotation in the autumn of 1976, alongside Columbo, McCloud and McMillan (formerly McMillan & Wife). The series proved popular enough that after four episodes of Quincy, M.E. were broadcast during the 1976-1977 season in the extended format, Quincy was spun off into its own weekly one-hour series without a typical 60-minute pilot. Instead, a two-hour episode kicked off a thirteen-episode shortened... 69e534e5c1
