It consists of the original brownstone residence, along with a four-story steel skeletal penthouse with concrete wall panels, which is cantilevered slightly over the street. The rear walls contain full-width windows with East River views, while the interiors contain high ceilings and open floor plans. Throughout his occupancy at the building, from the 1960s to 1990s, Rudolph constantly adjusted the interior layout. The penthouse originally received negative feedback from neighbors, who expressed concerns that it would draw excessive attention to the area and that it would block their own views of the river. 4053a1ba6f == A == 4053a1ba6f The building was originally a brownstone along with the other structures in... 4053a1ba6f == Could neutrinos be used practically for cooling? == 4053a1ba6f == Particles and auxiliaries == 4053a1ba6f

Washing machine pump, well, or spring. Water for the laundry would be carried, heated on a fire for washing, and then poured into a tub. The term is mostly applied to machines that use water. Other ways of doing laundry include dry cleaning (which uses alternative cleaning fluids and is performed by specialist businesses) and ultrasonic cleaning. When a noun, verb or adjective precedes a particle (粒子, joshi) or an auxiliary (助動詞, jodōshi), they may form together a minor phrase. Each particle/auxiliary or group of particles/auxiliaries has its own accentual behavior that can be classified as follows: 4053a1ba6f Before the invention of washing machines and indoor plumbing, clothes had to be washed by hand in a multi-step process that often occupied an entire day of work, plus drying and ironing. The first English patent under the category of washing machines was issued in 1691. Electric washing machines were advertised and discussed in newspapers as early as 1904, and the first automatic washing machine was introduced in 1937. I was looking at the Dyson sphere thread above and musing on other ways heat might be radiated, when I recalled vaguely the Urca process for cooling neutron stars via the emission of neutrinos. The cosmic neutrino background is at 2K, but it is very sparse - at best 1 million per cubic centimeter - so that's no use I think. [1] But the same paper suggests 0.2 eV is the upper limit of neutrino mass, so could you just make a bunch of neutrinos and antineutrinos from thin air, then use them to carry away heat energy in their momentum? If you knew how, I mean. Wnt (talk) 02:53, 24 January 2018 (UTC) 4053a1ba6f

List of hazing deaths in the United States Inclusion in this list requires that the incident be described as a hazing-related death by the media. Retrieved August 11, 2014. According to the National Collaborative for Hazing Research and Prevention at the University of Maine, hazing is defined as "any activity expected of someone joining or participating in a group that humiliates, degrades, abuses or endangers them, regardless of a person's willingness to participate". Although hazing is often associated with the activities that take place as a prerequisite for joining a group, it can also include activities that take place as an established member, such as the 2011 death of fraternity brother George Desdunes. 4053a1ba6f
