

Althorp House Northamptonshire England

The seat was first formed in 1832 and, until the current version was formed in 2010, it was interchangeable with the constituency of Daventry. In 1508, John Spencer from Wormleighton in Warwickshire purchased the estate of Althorp outside Great Brington with its moated house and several hundred acres of farmland. He had grazed sheep here from the 1480s. In 1508, impressed by the quality of the land, he eventually bought it and rebuilt the house. In 1511 he made further purchases to acquire much of the surrounding countryside, including the villages of Little Brington and Great Brington as well as their parish church, from Thomas Grey, 2nd Marquess of Dorset. Just outside the village is Althorp House, the home of the Spencer family where Diana, Princess of Wales grew up. Many generations of the Spencer family are buried at Great Brington church, including Diana's father the 8th Earl Spencer, who died in 1992. The death of Diana had an effect on the village – the pub was renamed from The Fox and Hounds to the Althorp Coaching Inn and the post office gained currency exchange facilities...
