Camden Park (amusement park) Whereas most trolley parks were located at the end of trolley lines, Camden Park is unusual in that it was built where riders traveling between Huntington and nearby cities would stop to change lines. Established in 1903 as a picnic spot by the Camden Interstate Railway Company, it is one of only thirteen trolley parks that remain open in the United States. Not long after opening, the park soon gained a carousel and other roadside attractions. Camden Park is West Virginia's only amusement park. The park is home to more than thirty rides and attractions, including a full-size traditional

Camry and ES 350 sedans. NHTSA The 2009–11 Toyota vehicle recalls involved a series of global corrective actions to automobiles by the Japanese manufacturer, Toyota Motor Corporation. Approximately 9 million vehicles were affected due to reports of sudden unintended acceleration. The recalled mats were of the optional "all-weather" type. However, litigation in 2013 challenged these findings. The crisis, which affected Toyota's reputation, was initially attributed to mechanical defects: "pedal entrapment" caused by floor mats and "sticking accelerator pedals" resulting from friction in the pedal assembly. The complex interplay of mechanical failures, software vulnerabilities, and regulatory scrutiny culminated in a significant safety event and penalties for the automaker
